Twin Peaks is on the Hunt for Talent in Indianapolis

Ultimate man-cave recruits "Lumber-Jills" for first outpost in Indiana

DALLAS (October 20, 2014) – Twin Peaks, the ultimate sports lodge, is busting out its first Indiana location next month in Indianapolis at 6880 E. 82nd Street. To outfit the new location, the concept is currently holding auditions for 100 enthusiastic and friendly ladies to join the team as Twin Peaks Girls.

Becoming a Twin Peaks Girl comes with perks such as flexible hours to accommodate school schedules, prepaid tanning and fitness packages, and a fun work environment with great tips and contests to win shopping sprees and vacations. Twin Peaks Girls also wear the pro-cheerleader-inspired "Lumber-Jill" costumes and have the chance to star in national modeling opportunities.

"Twin Peaks is so excited to be opening our first location in Indiana," said Kristen Colby, Twin Peaks' Senior Director of Marketing. "What fits into the feel of the Midwest restaurant scene better than a sports lodge? Indianapolis is the perfect place to introduce new fans in the area to our housemade comfort food and ice cold draft beer."

Twin Peaks Indianapolis North will feature over 120 high-definition flat screen TVs, an enclosed patio, an outdoor fire place and a man cave. The made-from-scratch menu features hearty American favorites and includes 30 draft beers served at a freezing, 29-degrees from a full-service bar.

"The Twin Peaks Girls are our signature assets and we can't wait to get started with auditions in Indiana and welcome a new group of girls to the team," added Colby.

To try out, potential Twin Peaks Girls are invited to stop by Twin Peaks Indianapolis North from 9:00am to 6:00pm, Monday – Sunday. Prospective applicants should arrive dressed to impress as positions are in high demand. Auditions will be held up until the time of opening. No previous restaurant experience is required.

Applications are also being accepted for 60 kitchen and staff positions.
