Twin Peaks Collects More Than 14,000 Toys for Charities During the Holiday Season

Multiple Twin Peaks locations host charity events throughout December 2016

DALLAS, TX (December 29, 2016) – Twin Peaks, the ultimate sports lodge known for its made-from-scratch kitchen, rugged atmosphere, and playful Twin Peaks Girls, recently teamed up with local charities this holiday season to host events around the nation, collecting toys and raising funds. The events were held during the month of December at various participating Twin Peaks locations.

Guests were encouraged to bring a new unwrapped toy or food items to help underprivileged children in the area. In some cases, Twin Peaks employees volunteered their time to help local families.

The charities benefitting from Twin Peaks' events in 2016 include Toys for Tots, the Children's Home Society, the Palmetto Children's Hospital, the Heart of Gold Foundation and St. Peter's & St. Joseph's Children's Home.

In addition to the multiple toys collected in numerous stores, Twin Peaks Corporate Headquarters also donated $2,000 to Wounded Warriors.

"Taking care of our veterans and giving back to our local communities is very near and dear to us and so many of our guests," said Joe Hummel, CEO of Twin Peaks. "I am really proud that we have such great staff at Twin Peaks who are excited to help collect toys and raise money for such important causes."
